National Service Week

National Service Week is drawing very near and the fact that the first week of the New Year bears that title is something in which everyone in Canada has an interest. The men are interested because it is obligatory upon each of them, between the ages of 16 and 65 years, to fill out one of the cards which the Government is sending them through the post office authorities. The women are interested because their men-folk are about to take this important duty. The children are interested because their school teachers have explained to them the meaning of National Service and the way in which father and big brothers at home have to reply to the various questions.

To write in the answers and return the card promptly is a good New Year's resolution for every man, woman and child. The Dominion and the advantage of being easy of fulfillment. It only means a few minutes' careful thought. The postman in the cities gets the hard work, for he has not only to deliver the cards; he is responsible also for their proper return. Prompt mailing of the answers will make the postman's work very much easier. National Service means that we are to get into that frame of mind which will cause us to think of the needs of the country, to realize that the interests of the State have a greater claim on us than our self-interest. This applies to everyone, from the highest in land to the lowest. The Prince of Wales' motto "I serve" may well be the motto of every citizen of the British Empire at this time.

There are many ways of serving the nation besides going to the front. The man on the farm and the mechanic in a workshop may be serving the nation as usefully as the man in the trenches. Every man, woman and child doing the work which represents his most efficient service to his country. The war is teaching us, or should be teaching us great lessons. Terrible as are its effects, those who have faith in Canadian manhood hope and believe that the nation will emerge from this experience a stronger and a better people. If the meaning of National Service is thoroughly grasped and properly understood, if the Government's call for information is responded to in the right spirit, the coming year will be the banner year in Canada's history.

Dust in His Eyes

"To throw dust in the eyes" originated in the early days of Greece. For Epaminondas, wishing to surprise the Lacedaemonians, he suddenly advanced in front, causing a great dust, which the wind blew in the face of the enemy, thus leading to the discovery of a flank movement he was executing in order to take the coveted heights in their rear.

LADY URSULA'S HUSBAND

FLORENCE WARDEN

Work, Love & Co., Ltd.
Toronto

It was by chance—it must have been only by chance, that the Lady Ursula received from Lady Creslow, formerly inviting her to the visit she had suggested, reached Oare Court on the morning after Paul's departure.

She read the letter through with a careful countenance. Lady Ursula said in the most decided way that the visit was to be paid by Lady Ursula alone, and although she would not let her husband, she would not let her son. Lady Ursula wondered, however, whether or not she might be hidden under these words something of a natural longing to hear about her disinherited son, even though she was too proud to own to such a weakness.

However that might be, the letter had to be answered, and Lady Ursula sat down to do so at once. In her letter she thanked Lady Creslow for her invitation, and although she said that all was not well between her and her husband, she said that she would be glad to see him, and ended by saying that, however she might feel about her husband, it would be too painful for her to see him.

Lady Ursula's husband, she said, was a very different man from the man she had known. With this tactful avoidance of a more explicit avowal of her parting from Paul, Lady Ursula dispatched the letter.

There was only just time to do so before the car was ready to take the Winterland party to the station. But had been sent to Lady Ursula by her husband, she said, was a very different man from the man she had known.

Rubber Supply Steady While Leather Gets Scarcer

This Explains Low Price of Rubber Footwear in Spite of Increase in Cost of Chemicals, Fabrics and Labor.

The war is using up enormous quantities, both of leather and rubber. At the same time it is seriously restricting the output of the former, much of which came from Russia—while rubber production keeps pace with the demand. From the great plantations now reaching maturity in British tropical dominions will come this year 150,000 tons of raw rubber—75% of the world's production, and an increase of over 40,000 tons over last year.

Thus, thanks to the British Government's foresight in encouraging these plantations, the allied world have been abundantly supplied with all the rubber products they need—Germany and her allies have been cut off—and the price of rubber has actually been reduced. Meanwhile leather has been getting scarcer and more expensive—80% higher than in 1914—and the end is not yet.

At normal prices a pair of good shoes cost about four times as much as a pair of rubbers. The latter would last twice as long if rubbers or overshoes were worn to protect them. Or a pair of heavy rubbers for the farm cost much less than a pair of shoes, and would stand much more wear in bad weather. So even before the war rubbers were a mighty good investment, to say nothing of their prevention of wet feet, colds and doctors' bills.

Now, when leather costs so much more in proportion, the saving from wearing rubber footwear is an outstanding fact to no one who thinks of doing without rubbers, overshoes, rubber boots, or whatever kind of rubber footwear best suits his needs. Now will be the time to help him the war, for by wearing rubber he conserves the leather that is so scarce, yet so absolutely necessary to the soldiers.

The countess laid down her knitting with a little cry. Those words told her more than she imagined, for she was old enough to remember the scandal caused by the delinquencies of Alan Creslow in his very early youth, when the information as to Paul's identity supplied the key to the puzzle.

"And he's left her?" gasped the countess. "She sent him away. She had to. She found out that he was a scoundrel, a present of jewels which had been stolen."

THE IMMIGRANT'S FIRST CHRISTMAS

By J. D. A. Evans

Christmas morning's early hours found Yuletide the immigrant in the land of the white man.

The wide expanse of prairie in winter mantle made his gaze, the thermometer at the shack doorway per chance bespeaks forth of the year reading, yet, how exhilarating an atmosphere, and with what emotion he will drive behind the team of a neighbor, who will call to convey him to the home of a settler whose hospitality he has been invited to partake of.

The sleigh bells tinkle merrily as the horse's prance over the deep snow, his ears have not listened to the choicest of the same words, steeped as on the previous Christmas, when he had been invited to partake of the same feast.

Saving by Good Roads

Sound Arguments in Favor of Good Country Roads

The cost of moving the products of the farm to the nearest market or distributing station depends upon the character of the roads over which they are hauled; if these roads are muddy and well-nigh impassable at certain seasons, all the money spent on expensive highways between the cities, or highways spanning the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific, will not take off a penny of the excessive price which now costs to move these products over the average country road.

Here is a little problem in road arithmetic which will be interesting to farmers. The road from Ames to Ames, Iowa, has been improved with a reasonably hard surface. Before improvement it took 100 pounds of average dirt, to pull a load of one ton. After improvement it took an average of 75 pounds to pull the same load in the same wagon. The savings were 25 per cent. when the farmer used the harder surface road.

These figures are from the United States Department of Public Roads, which made a dynamometer test on that particular road. Now the problem is, if the largest load a farmer could haul over the old road was 10 tons before it was improved, how much more he could haul now, with the new road.

If the largest load a farmer could haul over the old road was 10 tons before it was improved, how much more he could haul now, with the new road.

Enormous Quantities of Rubber To Be Used

Output of Rubbers and Overshoes Will Be Especially Large This Season

It will no doubt be a matter of interest to many to learn that the estimated quantity of crude rubber to be used this year, by the manufacturers of the different rubber products will amount to 202,000 tons. In the face of the fact that the United States will use approximately half of the output, while Great Britain is in practical control of the entire world's supply, a peculiar situation is presented. The explanation given in respect to the control of the supply is that in the present producing plantations were established by Great Britain some years ago. Through the financing and under the direction of the British Government, rubber plantations are now operated in Ceylon, Sumatra, the Malay States and Java.

As a result of this control the British Government has been able to gradually lower the price of crude rubber from the former price of $3 a pound, which obtained in 1910, to one cents per pound at the present time. Just previous to the outbreak of the war the price of all extra quality rubber was $12.50 per pound, so it will be noticed that despite war conditions the price of rubber has actually been having a soaring upward, the price of rubber has actually been reduced.

Generally follows that rubber is now rapidly superseding leather in every instance possible. The cost of leather, wearing coats and the leather footwear is reaching prohibitive prices. The price of all extra quality rubber was $12.50 per pound, so it will be noticed that despite war conditions the price of rubber has actually been having a soaring upward, the price of rubber has actually been reduced.

MILITARY METHOD IS SHOWN BY METHODS USED IN SAWAGE SHEDS

EFFICIENCY FIRST AND THEN ECONOMY IS MOTTO
This Article Describes How the Litter of War Material at the Front is Carefully Gathered Up and Nothing Wasted That Can Be Repaired and Put to Use Again

To feed and equip our millions of fighting men, a store of supplies is required. To Britain's vast resources. So that in a store of supplies, the methods and prevention of waste in all departments of the Quartermaster-General—that universal provider who has turned the whole empire into a series of arsenals and stores.

The new flower of Britain is in arms—peasant, miner and clerk and millhand. And to supply our armies is now the prime industry of the nation, and one of routing activity, thinks to our glorious command of the seas. Shiploads of stores, become giant guns and shell-cases, and chemical warfare, and war-wizards into high explosives of volcanic fury and force. The food for tanks is brought, the trucks of Australian sheep, American and Argentine cattle are trucked down for meat, and the hides go to Leicester. The Northamptonshire boot-makers—millions of pairs, for our Allies use as well as for our own.

And everywhere is jealous watch kept upon quality and quantity of arms and food. The quartermaster who works milk powder or other flour, is as diligent in his mind as an English prosecution, and the War Office is as strict as a denuded 40,000 lbs of butter and got a conviction against any man who takes the maximum quantity and sexual ostracism besides. So the whole nation is one solid quarry, and the British workshops the immediate source of supply.

Our laden fleets lie alongside the Humber quays, and the trucks of khaki porters and clerks handle mountains of stuff, from bombs to food, from drugs to the most modern motor kitchens that cook for thousands on the front. The French trains are filled, and at railheads there are endless columns of lorries, which day and night haul stores to all headquarters, divisions and brigades.

The whole system is one of clear division, and the filling of forms, indent, vouchers, and receipts. All work is done in the quartermaster's office of each unit to the delivery.

And what of the litter of an advance over the dead? To Mr. A. L. Smith, the quartermaster of the British army, the litter of the front is a treasure. Revolvers, twisted bayonets, machine guns, broken rifles, and shells either in fragments or unexploded. There are no waste here. Here is a first-aid tent, and round it is a busy little band of medics and surgeons from stricken men. Boots, caps and greatcoats are packed with letters and portraits, and pathetic little scraps fluttering amid the broken.

Over the heads of the stretcher-bearers and ambulances, the medics are collecting identification discs or recording wounds. The litter is not allowed to know that a test was made. One day a sweet little girl, a French girl, was found in the litter. She was a French girl, and she was a French girl, and she was a French girl.

And here you will find a mushroom of material, with the litter of the front. As well as Frenchmen at the front, there are British soldiers, and they are British soldiers, and they are British soldiers.

Here you realize the great work of the civil, military, and naval corps, who repair old boots, the tailors and hatterers, and the shoemakers and armers who mend boots, and they are British soldiers, and they are British soldiers.

These dumping sheds are not exactly cheerful places, but the sorters are there, and the litter is there. Boots are piled with uncanny in. Leather is sorted, and the litter is there. Boots are piled with uncanny in. Leather is sorted, and the litter is there.

Ten sizes in boots are looked out, and the litter is there. Boots are piled with uncanny in. Leather is sorted, and the litter is there. Boots are piled with uncanny in. Leather is sorted, and the litter is there.

The Benefit of Good Example

The benefit of good example was illustrated the other day at Pined Creek when two Treaty Indians, Neil Yellow Plums and Charlie Grier brought in the sum of $20 as a contribution to the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

These two men had seen in the papers that another Indian, Big Swan, had given $10 to the Fund and they were not to be outdone in their generosity, so they came with similar amounts. If the white people of Southern Alberta contribute on the same scale, the Patriotic Fund will be subsidized several times over.
